

Meet Kim Burnett!

I originally became a CASA (2007), then Master CASA (2008) and ultimately volunteer Guardian ad litem (2009) because my daughter had tremendous benefit of an extraordinary CASA. I joined the Friends of Alaska's Children in Care (FACC) Board (2018) because this same extraordinary CASA asked me to consider it when we ran into each other in line at Office Max (yes, Alaska is a very small state).

I'm extremely honored to serve as President of FACC and hold fast to a firm belief that every child and youth in care deserves an independent, committed voice before the court and a strong best interest advocate in their life.

The support FACC is able to offer CASAs, children and youth in care and their families is an amazing gift brought about through a group of mostly unknown but always unbelievably appreciated volunteers and donors that truly exemplify the Alaskan Spirit.

When not climbing walls, I most often may be found with my family and two funny doggies.
